THE ANNUAL CATALOGUE

of Books, Pamphlets, &c. published during the year 1852 will be ready shortly.

47, Ludgate Hill: Feb. 1, 1853.

THE very extensive sale of Tauchnitz's Leipzig editions of the Greek and Latin Classics in England gave rise to the idea, that native enterprise and scholarship might well accomplish for the home market what has been so long done for it by a foreign publisher. The Oxford Series of Classics, now published by Mr. Parker, presenting a correct text, printed on good paper, supplies a rival collection which can hardly fail to beat the Leipzig edition out of the field. In the Oxford edition, a biographical introduction is prefixed to each author, also chronological tables, historical indexes, and brief summaries; these are frequently wanting in the Leipzig editions.

Professor Gervinus, of Heidelberg, the author of the best work on the poetical literature of Germany which that country possesses, published a few weeks since a short introduction to a larger work, "The History of the 19th Century," now under his hands. This introduction has been seized and confiscated by Government, although some copies, we believe, have found their way to other countries. Professor Gervinus has also written an elaborate "Commentary on Shakespeare," in four vols. 8vo.

"The Scottish Review," a quarterly journal of social progress and general literature, commenced its publication with the January number, supported by the Scottish Temperance League, who have also just issued their "League Register, and Abstainers' Almanac."—Miss Sinclair has in course of publication a series of essays and tales under the title of "Common-Sense Tracts."—Miss Mackintosh's new work, first announced under "Good in Everything," &c. will be "Alice Montrose."—"Boyhood of Great Men" is the title of a most attractive and interesting for youth, shortly to be published.

The late Mackworth Praed's collected Works was first announced in England two years prior to the recent American edition: it will be edited by Mr. Moultrie and Mr. Coleridge.

Mr. Bentley has published this day "A Narrative of Major Strickland," under the editorship of Miss Strickland, author of "The Queens," entitled "Twenty-seven Years' Life in Canada, or the Experiences of an Early Settler."—Mr. Whyte Melville's "Digby Grand," has been reprinted from "Fraser's Magazine," and forms 2 vols. post 8vo.

The volume just published by Mr. Bosworth, under the title of "&c." referred to in our last "Circular," is by the authoress of "Travels in the United States" (the Lady Emmeline Stuart Wortley).—The publication of Lord John Russell's "Life of Mr. Fox" has been postponed until after Easter.—Currier Bell's new novel, "Villette," is now ready; and Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton's complete edition of "My Novel," will appear on Friday next.—Mr. Bogue's beautifully illustrated edition of Longfellow's "Hyperion" is now ready. Besides the elegance of its typography, it possesses peculiar value, arising from the illustrations, of which there are above 100, being executed from designs made during a recent tour through Germany, Switzerland, Salzburg, and the Tyrol, undertaken for the express purpose of illustrating this work.

A bookseller at Athens for some time past has been publishing translations of Sanscrit works into modern Greek.—Among the subjects of research and investigation proposed to the members of the French School, at Athens, was the following for 1852: "To visit the Isle of Patmos, principally for the purpose of instituting researches in the Library of the Monastery, and compiling a Catalogue, with an exact and complete description, of the MSS. contained in the Library, accompanied with extracts."

Messrs. Bagster have in the press a learned essay on the proper names of the five books of Moses, under the title of "Onomasticon Pentateuchi."
